Winners Bell and Kalady

Dorm contest

The average college dorm decor, functionality, creativity, usage of space, and average, or boring, but two overall eye appeal. students in Bard Hall take pride in being an exception at SRU.

Jeff Bell, a Theta Chi brother, and Mark Kalady, Bard D-4, took first place in the SRU room contest, sponsored by the SGA Bookstore.

Patti Vincent and Linda Chodnicki, 121 Harner, placed second and third place went to David Donald, 111 Kraus Hall. Out of 11 entries the judges looked at six with first prize receiving a dinner for two at the Tavern Restaurant. The rooms were judged on unique

According to Judge Liz Barry, Bell and Kalady's room was "the most attractive and the most intriguing." The most unique aspect of the room was the working electric fireplace which created a living room effect. Also unique about the room was the brick appearance of the walls, the fish nets, lava lamp, and various other artifacts distributed throughout the room. Because of the home-like appearance "everyone likes to come in here and relax," said sophomore Kalady.

Banquet to honor scholars future goals are to become a certified public accountant and become a member of an accounting firm or attend graduate school.

Himmelstein is also a Maree McKay Scholar and has maintained an overall QPA of 3.87 while being active in the campus literary magazine, Ginger Hill, the honor society Phi Eta Sigma, and the Environmental Science Testing Service. He has served as a Junior Academy Science judge, and as an assistant lecturer for lab exercises. Himmelstein is a Fulbright applicant for graduate study abroad and plans to attend either Wright State University or the University of North Carolina as a predoctoral student in bio-medical science.
